Four years ago the Tragle Medicine Company began business in this city, at No. 811 East Broad Street. Since which time our business has forced us to move to larger quarters, a few doors below, where we have established a store with prices Richmond might well be proud of. "We set the prices" lower than any store in the South. In the past four years we have saved Richmond people $60,000.00, and are prepared in the coming year, beginning to-morrow morning at 8 o'clock, to do even more. We begin by making our prices the lowest in the United States, and in order to prevent the dealers from buying our entire stock at the opening of the doors, we are compelled to display the same special sale sign "only two articles to a customer." For the convenience and comfort of our patrons we have put on an extra force, extra delivery, and will give our mail and express department extra support. All orders attended to immediately. We simply ask of you, "cut this ad, out, mark the things you want, and present it at our new store. Out of town people can club together and order goods at a small cost of a few pennies express to each. Remember, this sale continues all week —closing Saturday night next at 11:30 P. M. After this sale we will continue with our same cut prices, which are the lowest in the South Following are only a few of our thousands of articles. -closing Saturday night next

CLUB CHAT AND GOSSIP OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK

A Good Natured Member of the Smart Set Jollies the Others Along, and Tells About a Thing or Two He Has Learned.

EDWARD VII. MUST DISCARD HIS SPORTING WAYS AND SETTLE DOWN TO BUSINESS.

By DIEDRICH KNICKERBOCKER,

(Copyright; all rights reserved.)

NEW YORK, February 2.—Harry Lehr has done a mee thing. He has been writing Mrs. Astor's acceptances in black link instead of purple, and Cousin Cholly is wearing black silk socks with clocks of three ostrich features. Some fil-natured three controls for a wear file of the death of Executor Melchoir, who, everybody remembers, lived in constant war-barry large with the widow Stavens It is people have commented upon Harry Lehr having printed the Astor motto Semper Fidelis (always faithful), in black, and Choily embroidering Ich Dien (I serve) in white on his socks. But Harr Cholly are nothing if not original. But Harry and

Speaking of the Queen, now of sainted memory, she was a great admirer of American women. I do not think she admired them just the way Albert Edward did; and I do not think she enter-tained the idea that they were all sov-ereigns in their own right. Victoria never overlooked the fact that she was the Queen. She did not make her dig-rity oppressive, like the queens in "Through a Looking-Glass," but still she wanted everybody to realize she was the real thing. Some of my literary friends like Cholly Knickerbocker, for instance and yet there are some persons who deny Cholly's claims to be considered literary— have endcavored to foster the idea that when an American society queen was presented at court, Her Majesty stepped right down from the throne, kissed her on both cheeks and said: "My dear, when did you come over? Where are you stop-You must send your luggage down to the Windsor and make me a visit." Now that is all wrong. The late and lamented Ward McAllister, the Chris-topher Columbus of the 400, in his ten-der "Recollections" with simplicity and truth recorded the touching fact that when he dined at Windsor it was in the kitchen. Of course American enterprise has worked wonders, and a few Americans have dired upstairs, but not with the Queen, unless they happened to be diplomats. Cholly's friends on coming appomats. Chony's friends on coming home suffer a confusion of ideas. They mix ideas of royalty. They have dired with Albert Edward, but not with the Queen. The Queen drew the line at the Queen. The Queen drew the line at the dinner table. On some grand occasions she dined at a small table and the honored guests at another, which is a good deal like "dining with Mrs. Astor and Harry Lehr" in the public room at Del-

A GOOD WORD FOR EDWARD. My friends who have been in England and hear enough to the throne to have an X-ray of royalty gleam before them, remind me of fox hunters with an ambiold friend Minnie Stevens, now Mrs. Paget, or "Mrs. General Paget," as some of Cholly's friends call her without much idea of what a feminine general may be, arrived on the Oceanic after the Queen's death. She was startled to find a score death. She was startled to find a score of her old friends on the wharf dressed in mourning with great black borders to their handkerchiefs, She could not imagine at first the reason for this display and feared smallpox had devastated When she learned the sad truth she could scarce refrain smiling through her tears. She then eulogized the dead Queen and spoke a good word for Edward

Speaking of Minnie Stevens reminds me of those old days when her good mother, Mrs. Paran-Stevens, was one of the most cial supremucy. Miss Minnie was one of the first who married abroad. Some per-fare with the widow Stevens. It is rumored that the Stevens estate will once again furnish the material for legal bat-ties and funds to conduct them, even though Mrs. Stevens and Mr. Melchoir are not of this world.

CHANGE IN HIS MAJESTY.

If I am any judge of men, and of England's new king in particular, I am ready to declare that some people will be sur-prised in Edward VII. I have seen him many times, in many places and under many circumstances, and I do not hesi-tate to say that Albert Edward, Prince of Wales, is one mun and Edward VII., King of England, is another. Many of the ambitious Americans who throng London will have a lesson to learn. A barrier has come up: "the divinity which hedgeth in a king" will show itself. It is not merely that Albert Edward extended his agricultural exploius of sowing wild outs over sixty years, and that he is now a tetired farmer. It is not merely because he felt as Prince of Wales he was an ornamental figure and possessed leisure; but it is cause he realizes the very safety of the throne depends upon his conforming to a standard of excellence, a pattern of re-spectability, which was established by the Prince Consort and Queen Victoria. There is very little left in modern life which incorporates the ideal, and the people still possess the love for the ideal. Alfred Tennyson by his "idyls of the King" not only pointed to the throne but thought that ideality was there to be found. The days of the Stuarts, the Georges, are over, and the throne of Edward VII. will only remain an heirloom during such time as it enshrines the ideality of the people.

MUST BE RICH AND MODERN.

The left assembly ball at the Waldorf-Astoria was a brilliant success. I am not fond of subscription balls as a rule. They remind me, to use a homely simile, of "hush," to use a musical simile, of a pot pourri. The as-embly balls, however, are removed from even the suspicion of being a mixture. It is absolutely exclusively of the most pronounced and clusively of the most pronounced and progressive fashion. Ward McAllister reduced the tone of the venerable Putriarchs to the level of a Harlem church sociable, but the ladies who manage the assemblies are wise in their generation. They invite only those who are of the first social position and who, by entertainment and expenditure, keep themselves prominently forward. people with a savor of Knickerbocker lineage are not wanted. Musty names not burnished with modern wealth do not shine on the list. Guests must be up to date. The ladies who received were Mrs. Edmund L. Baylies, Mrs. W. Bayard Cutting, Mrs. Duncan Cryder and Mrs. Wil-

Mrs. Baylies was a Miss Van Rensselaer and Mr. Baylies is a descendant of the Hamiltons ad Livingstons, but Mrs Baylies herself diligently treads the duous social path, keeping herself in the front rank. Mrs. Cutting and Mrs. Cryder also belong to old families, but they, like Mrs. Baylies, are "progressive." I merely mention this to show that old sons sniffed a bit because Paget was only a captain, while Consucto Yznaga, without a fortune, married the young noblebut, I may mention incidentally, that they also possess sufficient wealth to keep their front door handles well polished.

There were only one hundred and fifty couples. Ward McAllister was right when

There were only one hundred and fifty couples. Ward McAllister was right when he said that New York Society consisted of 200 couples, or 400 persons. Between the families that drop out and the new families that drop in the limit is fairly fixed at that number.

The W. K. Vanderbilt baby has a name at last, It is Muriel. When the priest sprinkled it with holy water it gave a lusty shriek.

CHRISTENED A ROMANIST.

But that is neither here nor there. This is the first of the Vanderbilts born and christened in the Catholic faith. The Roman Catholic set in the exclusively fashionable circles of this city has always been very small. But it has always been very small. But it has always been conspicuously free from social scandals. Mrz. Arthur Kemp, who was Miss Isabelle Neilson, and Mr. Clarence Mackay were the sponsors, both being Catholics. The Catholic set formerly was composed of the Noels, Brugieres, Gebhards and Iselins. It has now been augmented by the Kanes, Vanderbilts and Oelrichs. The time has evidently come when the social prejudice against Catholics marrying Protestants has been removed, and families will now no longer all be Catholic or all Protestant.

Our social season at the best is short, and each year it becomes shorter. The that has come upon us and the new era of country homes and several of them. To be in the fashion nowadays one must own estates in several parts of the country, from Maine to Georgia.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing ths work. time has evidently come when the social prejudice against Catholics marrying Protestants has been removed, and families will now no longer all be Catholic or all Protestant.

Our social season at the best is short, and each year it becomes shorter. The exodus for Florida, Alken, South Carolina, the Mediterranean and Egypt has begun. The Heber Bishops gave a brillinat dance a few nights ago, and goodbys were so frequently spoken that it seemed to me that the entertainment was given to afford an opportunity for leave-taking. Our great New York palaces are closed nine out of twelve months. This is due to the spirit of restlessness that has come upon us and the Mesdames L. L. Lewis, James Lyons, E. C. Minor, Thomas Moore, Paul Howle, E. R. Morgan, J. B. Pace, Norman Randolph, Russell Robinson, Captain Charles S. Morgan; Messrs. Morgan P. and J. Enders Robinson, Jr.; Mesdames Grace H. Shields, Chas. Straus, W. D. Thomas, J. Enders Robinson, J. Hoge Tyler, Mann Valentine, James R. Werth, Wm. White, Mary Coles Whittle, Ann McD. Green, George Lyon, Mr. E. V. Williams.

The charter membership list was closed throughout the country by the national board in December, 1899, and it is now impossible to secure the honor.

The initial letters G. W. M. A. have now become familiar in every household, and every one knows the Association is created to aid in carrying out plans set forth in George Washington's last will and testament in regard to post-graduate work. Washington thought our students should be given advantages in post-graduate study equal to those of Europe. Extracts from a letter of Mrs. Sweet, of Maine, ex-president G. W. M. A., give a clear idea of the object of the Association. She writes:
